DRASTIC TAXATION MAY BE IMPOSED BY FEDERAL GOVERNM'T

BIG DEFICITS HANGING OVER THE TREASURY APPROPRIATION BILLS

TOTAL APPROPRIATIONS NEXT YEAR MAY BE CUT TO THREE BILLION

(United Press)

Washington, Jan. 22—Drastic tax reductions will be imposed during the first year of the incoming administration, leading members of the house believed today. The reason is that with the big deficits hanging over the treasury appropriation bills for the fiscal year beginning July 1 thus far reported from the house appropriation committee show an increase over the present year.

The total appropriation permanent and annual for the next year can be cut to reach the three billion dollar mark, Republican Leader Mondell and Representative Good of Iowa, chairman of the appropriations committee, agreed, even should there be some unexpected economy to take the expense below this. Hope for tax reduction is slight because the present business depression probably will decrease tax receipts. Thus far seven bills have been reported from the appropriation committee. Compared with the similar appropriation for the present year that show a net increase of $13,500,000. Mondell and Good however are confident that the total appropriation will show a decrease, but admitted it will be "only a few million dollars."

COMPLETE PAYMENTS OF SOLDIERS BONUS

(United Press)

St. Paul, Jan. 22—Bids for the purchase of $4,500,000 in Minnesota certificates of indebtedness will be opened February 3 at the state auditor's office as the next move in attempting to determine the right method of completing payment of soldier bonus.

This step was decided upon today following recommendations by Governor Preus to senators and representatives that certificates be offered for sale to determine if a proper selling price could be obtained.

Until the bids are offered no further legislative action will be taken on the payment of soldier bonuses.

If the bids do not come up to the figures considered equitable by the state bonus board it is probable the plan to appropriate money direct from the state funds will be followed.

YANKS SAY JAPAN RULES BY BAYONET

10,000 JAP TROOPS AT VLADIVOSTOK INTIMIDATE THE RUSSIANS

AMERICAN CONSUL PROTESTS RAISING NIPPONESE FLAGS ON PUBLIC BUILDINGS

Honolulu, Jan. 22—Since the Japanese shot up Vladivostok last April they have ruled that city with a high hand. At present they have 10,000 troops stationed there to impose their will on the Russian inhabitants. The American consul's protest against the Japanese seizure of the city resulted in the lowering of countless Japanese flags which were then immediately raised over the main buildings after imperial rifles had spread terror and death among the Russians.

In addition to troops, the Japanese have erected a powerful wireless plant in the main street of the city.

Japanese soldiers, singly or in squads, constantly patrol every block.

While the military keep the city's people on the jump, shrewd citizens from Nippon are buying up the choicest property and making other strategic moves to clinch their hold on commercial pre-eminence. So sure are the Japanese that they will be the permanent possessors of the city, that they have adopted methods that are almost incredible on the part of a great nation. They have not hesitated to seize a port, the doorway to the measureless resources of Siberia, although they are not at war with Russia.

American business and personal mail, both outgoing and incoming, is censored by the Japanese.

2 WIVES CLAIM 1 SOLDIER HUSBAND

(By United Press)

St. Paul, Jan. 22—When Mrs. Grace E. Naefus, twenty-nine, went to the army hospital at Camp Grant, Ill., to visit her husband two years ago she found another woman at his bedside who said she was Mrs. Naefus. A divorce was granted.

There's a Difference.

"I resent the imputation that I am a member of the 'pie brigade,'" said the pompous citizen.

"But you don't deny that you want a government job, do you?" asked Mr. Dubwaite.

"Certainly not. It should be the ambition of every patriot to serve his country."

"I agree with you. It should be the ambition of every patriot to serve his country—without pecuniary reward."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Strictly Business.

He—Do you believe in fortune telling?

She—Well, I don't know much about such things, but papa believes in it.

He—Is it possible?

She—Yes; he says the mercantile agencies are fairly accurate.—New Haven Register.

CONVENTION SYSTEM IS AGAIN ENDORSED

NORTHERN MINNESOTA EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION TAKES ACTION AT CROOKSTON

ALSO PLEDGED FOR BETTER MARKET SYSTEM—RESOLUTIONS ARE ADOPTED

(By United Press)

Crookston, Minn., Jan. 22—Publishers of Minnesota today again endorsed the convention system in connection with the state primary election in a resolution adopted at the closing session of the Northern Minnesota Editorial Association.

They also went on record pledging support to secure better market systems for farm produce.

Another resolution adopted approved the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence tide water project, and requests were made for a state appropriation fund to aid agricultural schools at Crookston, Duluth and Grand Rapids and further agricultural interests in the state in every way.

Creation of a Lake Bemidji state park was also advocated.

Duluth made a strong fight for the 1922 convention at the annual banquet last night.

H. T. Phillip of Mahnomen was elected president of the Northern Minnesota Editorial association at the closing session.

A. L. Lafreniere of Grand Rapids was named vice president, and A. G. Rutledge of Minneapolis was re-elected secretary-treasurer of the association, a job he has held for many years

Sauk Center won the fight for next year's convention. The convention was awarded Sauk Centre in spite of the strong bid made by Duluth boosters last night.

Chicago, Jan. 22—A suit to test the constitutionality of the recent reconstruction of the Volstead act prohibiting manufacture of home brew was on file in federal court, Attorney D. D. Stansbury's petition asserting that the government cannot collect both a revenue tax on homemade liquors and assess a fine for violation of a law forbidding their manufacture. More than 600 Chicago saloonkeepers have been assessed both the fine and the tax, according to Mr. Stansbury.

EQUITY PLANT AUDIT ASSAILED AS FALSE

STOCKHOLDER, AT FARGO MEETING, SAYS DEFICIT SHOWN IS $250,000 SHORT

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 22—C. W. Reichert, Carrington, Nonpartisan house member of the North Dakota legislature, at the Equity Co-operative Packing company's plant section of the Tri-State Grain Growers' association meeting here, charged that the audit report made yesterday showing a deficit of $751,216.67 is between $250,000 and $300,000 less than the actual deficit.

Reichert, who was denied the floor yesterday, was given a chance to present the claims of the stockholders committee, which is opposed to P. M. Casey, president.

"I believe the report is between $250,000 and $300,000 in error, and this bears out my charge of what the president told me several weeks ago that there would be a $1,000,000 deficit," he said.

He criticised the audit in that it had been certified "as taken from the books of accounts" rather than through checking up of books and accounts.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 22—Stockholders of the Equity Corporation Exchange voted down proposals of an insurgent committee for an audit of the company's books and records by the state banking board. President Casey promised that investigation of the Northwest Auditing company now in progress would be completed and a statement issued to each of the 17,000 stockholders following report of the auditing company. President Casey was expected to be re-elected.

MURDER MYSTERY TRIAL UNDER WAY

SOILED CANVAS SAID TO HOUSE DENTON'S BODY CREATES INTEREST

MRS. LOUISE PEETE, CHARGED WITH MURDER, IS COOL AND COLLECTED

Los Angeles, Jan. 22—A faint but obnoxious odor permeated the court room of Judge Willis when a huge soiled canvas was unrolled and brought before the jury which is weighing the fate of Mrs. Louise Peete, charged with the murder of J. Denton, wealthy Los Angeles broker.

The canvas had held the supposed body of Denton while it reposed for three months in a wooden vault covered with dirt in the basement of his home.

Spectators, lawyers and jurors craned their necks to see the canvas. There was a distinct buzzing and many gasped. The display had no effect on Mrs. Peet. She gazed calmly without a flicker of an eyelid.

The "sphinx woman" as Mrs. Louise Peete has become known to the court room fans, attending the trial, showed little concern, interest or feeling regarding the progress of the case. In fact most of the spectators evidenced more interest in the trial than did the calm woman of twenty-seven who calmly watched the prosecution building up circumstances on which they demand she be hung.

BRITAIN FACES A CONTEST BETWEEN LABOR AND CAPITAL

LABOR IS ATTEMPTING TO MAINTAIN THE PRE-WAR WAGE STANDARD

CAPITAL CONTENDS PRICES ARE FALLING AND WAGES MUST GO DOWN

By WEBB MILLER

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

London, Jan. 22—Great Britain is on the verge of a new struggle between capital and labor.

The initial skirmishes already are under way on the question of reducing wages.

Labor is attempting to maintain the war time wages. Capital is contending that a start must be made toward pre-war wages on the ground that prices' are falling and that Great Britain will be unable to compete industrially with other countries if wages are not lowered.

The United Press today obtained opinions from leaders on all sides.

"A world wide fall in wages is inevitable," declared Lord Askwith, foremost British authority on industrial conditions. Prices are falling and will continue to fall. It is obvious that wages which were raised as a result of increasing cost of living must fall simultaneously as wages are a factor in the cost of production and so will further depress prices and lower the cost of living."

John Clynes, labor member of parliament said:

"I have no hesitation in saying that labor will reject this proposal for a general reduction in wages with the object of lowering prices. There is mention of a joint movement to reduce profits and wages simultaneously by the laborites who are refusing to take the first move.

Sir Peter Rylands, president of the Federation of British Industry declared that it will be impossible for Great Britain to compete with Germany and Belgium in wages.

GIVING $5 TIP TIPPED OFF CLUE

(By United Press)

Mt. Vernon, Ill., Jan. 22—A $5.00 tip led to the arrest of Rev. Guy Kyle and apparently is a solution of the $212,000 mail robbery here

The former Free Methodist preacher who went into the garage business "to make more money," gave an expressman a $5 tip to move a small box for him, which started tongues of Mt. Vernon wagging. A partner of Kyle associated the $5 tip with other loose use of money by the former preacher and tipped off the postal inspectors.

All but $27,000 in securities were found in an egg crate and other out of the way places around the garage. Rev. Kyle confessed, postal authorities said that "I was in on the robbery," but refused to make any further statement.

The mail sacks were taken from the mail wagon while standing near the postoffice, about half a block from the Kyle garage.

WOMEN AS "PAMPERED TOYS"

Distinguished French Abbe Makes Some Sharp Commentaries on Sex Relations in America.

American women expect (very rightly) from their husbands the same attention which French husbands receive from their wives. The American husband expects nothing, and for what he receives the Lord makes him truly thankful, writes Ernest Dimnet, in Harper's.

"We are pampered toys," an American lady told me in a distinctly resentful tone, "but we only know it when our husbands, after keeping every trouble from us, suddenly die."

If the abstraction called the American woman could be met with, I should ask her whether she really likes to see a dozen men in her drawing room watch her the whole evening and bob up with military precision the moment she half rises to ring the bell; whether she would not prefer her escort to think of what he is saying to her instead of concentrating on where she walks, skipping to the unprotected side of her the whole time; or whether she likes being supported across the road with infinite precautions, as if she were a very ill person or a very brittle object; or, on the contrary, firmly grasped below the shoulder and waffed to the other side with the triumphant ease of long practice.

I have kept a picture representing three exceedingly widely known American men watching a lady go down a deck stairway. She is spoken of as a sportswoman and would probably think nothing of scrambling down a rope ladder if it amused her. The steps on which she appears are broad and comfortable, but the gentlemen with guiding and supporting gestures smile at her achievement with the same wonder and delight as if she were a baby for the first time off the go-cart. Meanwhile the lady herself smiles in her furs like coy Phoebe between two clouds.

RARE FRUITS IN PHILIPPINES

Two That Are Said to Be Delicious and Unknown in the Rest of the World.

Among the productions of the Philippine islands are two delicious fruits almost unknown in the rest of the world. One of these is the durian, whose remarkable qualities were descanted upon by Alfred Russel Wallace during his explorations in the Malay archipelago.

It grows on a lofty tree somewhat resembling an elm, is about as large as a coconut, has a shiny shell, and contains a creamy pulp which combines some of the flavor of a delicious custard with those of a fine cheese.

To eat durians, we are told by those who know, is a new sensation worth a voyage to the East to experience. Americans in the islands call the durian "the vegetable Limburger cheese."

The other rare fruit spoken of is the mangosteen, said to be the only fruit that the governor general of the islands has never tasted. The exquisitely flavored liquid it contains cannot be preserved for shipping abroad.

Chance for Golden Service.
Mark how men drain every cup of pleasure, until sensibility wears out; and then health wears out; and then ability to feel wears out. Give me the poet or teacher who will put a true picture of this before men, and he shall do the age a golden service.—H. R. Hawels.

CHIC TAFFETA DANCE FROCK

In all respects like a gown our grandmothers might have danced demurely in is this taffeta frock with tiny taffeta ruchings, for it has the pointed bodice and shoulder line of the sixties.

METALLIC BEAD BAG FASHION

Accessory Dear to the Heart of Every Woman, Now Requires Careful Consideration.

The bead bags have taken several new turns for the better. One is the metallic bead bag, the beads, though colored, showing the metallic glitter. These draw up for the most part on beaded strings. The small "dinner bag," just large enough to swing from one finger, is particularly good in these beads. Small taffeta bags, partly beaded, are attractive in color, and a novelty is a navy taffeta with flame-colored stitching, entirely covered by a fringe of blue beads, repeating the design in flame beads. Henna mocha is making some very stunning suit bags.

Every woman who has ever had one will sing the praises of a black evening gown. Nothing gives such satisfactory service and admits of so many color contrasts. By having half a dozen different color changes for the black gown you get the same effect as you would with half a dozen different colored gowns. You can do this with your fan, the single ostrich plume on a tortoise bracelet being the newest thing in this line. Flame, orange and jade, with the softer colors, such as orchid, ciel blue and pale buff combined, are most popular. Uncurled ostrich for the spread fan, sometimes with the curled tip, is preferred to the whole curled plume. Or you can get your color note in your beads, for right now the cut amber and a brilliant red bakelite beads are being worn extensively. Bracelets, too, are colorful, and if one is not enough, you can wear three all at once. Snake bracelets studded with colored brilliants add life to a somber ensemble, as do the ivory bangles with colored enamel decorations.

TO USE BATAVIA IN HATS

Material Promises to Be Given Favor in Spring Millinery—Comes in Colors.

Batavia promises to be one of the best materials for use in spring hats, for, acording to the bulletin of the Retail Millinery Association of America, it is employed in a variety of effective ways. Ombre batavia, shading from one color to another, is regarded as especially attractive. Batavia also comes in a printed Paisley effect, combining the colorings of the Paisley shawl. It is also seen embroidered in all-over scroll and floral designs. Developed in conventional patterns, it is much used for tams, draped turbans and off-the-face models, which are trimmed simply with bows of gros-grain ribbon.

According to the bulletin batavia is combined with Milan, leghorn and peanut straws. It is used to face brims, and the ombre material is favored for trimmings in the form of twisted bands or of large bows with fringed ends. Batavia hats are trimmed with unusually attractive wreaths of flowers and grasses chosen to carry out the color schemes of the various models. Oddly-shaped straw pins, which in some cases have centers of glistening beads, are also used to decorate them.

Care of Silk Waists.
White silk shirts and waists washed in warm suds, rinsed in water of the same temperature, wrapped in a bath towel to absorb the extra mositure, and then pressed with a warm iron, will not turn yellow for a long time. Avoid exposure to strong light while drying and really hot irons, for both tend to turn white silk yellow.

SIMPLE REASON FOR THRIFT

Its Practice Necessary That There May Be Margin of Production Over Consumption.

Is it not mere caddishness for one who can afford to buy and does buy silk skirts and silk stockings and automobiles, and who freely admits that he wastes money, but who justifies himself somewhat belligerently by saying that he can afford to waste money, and that it is nobody's business, to object to other people doing the same sort of thing only because he thinks the other people cannot afford the expenditures? Right down in our hearts we know that the concern is not all with the welfare of those other people who are wasting their money; it is really a matter of jealousy and of class distinction based on clothing—a feeling that these people have committed social misdemeanors, as when the cook duplicated her mistress' hat. And any one who preaches thrift to people on the ground that they should not have what they like for their money is simply preaching nonsensical cant. He is really preaching revolution.

If, then, thrift has no virtue in itself, if every person within the limits of the law is entitled to spend what he can earn, and more than he can earn if he can get away with it, is there any unmoral reason for thrift?

The reason for thrift is plain. It is not necessary to talk about morality. It is simply that if we do not have thrift we shall not have a margin of production over consumption—that is, we shall not have capital. If we do not have capital we cannot have progress, for we shall have no means wherewith to make improvement in existing facilities for production. There is the danger of extravagance. And it is a very real danger.—Samuel Crowther, in the North American Review.

SCHUBERT DIED IN POVERTY

Estate of the Great Musician Was Estimated at His Demise to Amount to About $17.

Lawrence Gilman writes as follows regarding the poverty of Franz Schubert (1797-1828), one of the greatest and most inspired composers the world ever knew, says the Denver News.

"Schubert, who was almost the age of his contemporary, Shelley, composed his B minor symphony in the year of Shelley's death. Like Shelley, he was too well beloved of the gods; Shelley died at thirty, Schubert at thirty-one. He was four-fifths peasant and he sang like a rustic angel. When he died he left behind him personal effects valued at a little over $12 and some of the loveliest music in existence. A few coats, waistcoats, trousers, shoes, shirts, cravats, handkerchiefs, socks, one hat, one towel, one sheet, two bedcases, one mattress, one bolster, one quilt and a quantity of manuscripts appraised by the official inventory at ten florins (about $4.80), constituted his material possessions. Within a year of his death he had been unable to afford a 17-cent dinner and he was selling some of the greatest songs ever written for the 1920 price of four subway tickets. As Sir George Grove observes, 'beside this, the poverty of Mozart—the first of the two great musicians whom Vienna has allowed to starve—was wraith.' Sir George is exercised because he can find in Schubert no trace of 'formal or dogmatic religion.' No doubt a lifetime of privation and neglect and a miserable deathbed should dispose a man toward 'formal or dogmatic religion,' and develop a spirit of humble gratitude for so instructive an experience of the ways of Providence."

OBJECTED TO WOMAN'S SKIRT

Peculiar Reason Advanced by Chinaman for Refusing to Consider Matrimonial Alliance.

In spite of the success with which the campaign against the binding of women's feet has been waged in China, there are still parts where men will not marry girls who have natural feet. Missionaries try, so far as possible, to arrange marriages between Christian girls and Christian men. One of our Christian girls, writes a correspondent, was getting quite an old maid, having reached the age of twenty-eight. Several heathen had asked her, but she refused them all. One of our preachers approached a country tenant farmer and tried to persuade him to ask the twenty-eight-year-old lady. We all thought it would come off. The man was about the same age as the lady in question, and had not yet succeeded in getting engaged. But, to our surprise, he would have nothing to do with the plan, and gave as his reason: "Who would marry a girl with a skirt like that?" The girl had her skirt embroidered in a different way to the girls and the women in the village where the particular swain lived, and he felt that he dared not make such an innovation on the fashion of his own village. A beautiful pair of brown eyes, long, fine, black hair, and a good Christian character counted as nothing against a strange style of skirt embroidery!

Try Smiling.

Two women were talking; one smiled as she spoke, and the other frowned. One looked out on the world with friendly eyes, and the other scowled into the faces of passers-by.

"Well, you see, I learned long ago how to smile," said the smiling one. "At first it was not so easy; then by degrees I learned to smile even though I did feel like crying.

"I think that personally I made a hard study of the psychology of a smile. When I went into a store, and faced a clerk who was inattentive or insolent I smiled at her, and then made known my wants. In most cases I got back a smile for every one I gave. Not always, of course, but often enough to learn that a smile would go farther than a frown any day. So that even though I may feel like pulling somebody's hair, I smile. It is contagious, but the health board will not interfere."—Columbus Telegram.

CAMPAIGN AGAINST BLINDNESS IS ON

WORLD-WIDE EFFORT TO PREVENT IT AND TO RELIEVE THE SIGHTLESS.

OUTCOME OF THE GREAT WAR

Winifred Holt, Founder of the Chain of "Light Houses," Is Leader in the Work—Eminent Persons Are Interested.

By EWARD B. CLARK.

Washington.—A committee, which from its personnel promises aggressive action, has been formed in Washington as a first basis of operations for a campaign against blindness in the world. Other committees will be formed in different cities of the United States and throughout Europe. The intention is to intensify the present efforts for the relief of the blind and to conduct a fight to prevent blindness.

It was the World war which was responsible for the proposed intensified campaign in behalf of the blind and in behalf of those who are threatened with blindness. The United States had only 100 men blinded in battle, but it has 75,000 civilians who are sightless. France had 3,000 men blinded as a result of battle, and in Italy 1,000 men lost their sight from war causes. The figures of Great Britain, Russia and other countries engaged in the war are not at present available.

Winifred Holt of New York, who is an artist of note, has been in Washington superintending the formation of the committee for the blind. She is the founder of the chain of "Light Houses" for the sightless that have been established during the past 14 years in this country and abroad.

New Methods Are Devised.

Now it must not be understood that the governments of the world and various state governments of the United States have not been doing what they could for the blind in the past, and are not continuing after some kind of manner, to fulfill their obligations to these hopeless ones, but the war and the necessity of rehabilitating men suddenly made blind has brought in its wake new methods of treatment and also new means of making the blind happy, self-confident and self-supporting.

In the war against blindness all the lessons which have been learned from the treatment of the blind during the war and since the armistice will be utilized to help carry on the campaign. At the first meeting which Mrs. Holt held in this city the ambassador from France and his wife were present. At the second the Italian government was represented, in addition, of course, to representatives of the United States government, including Surgeon General Ireland. Miss Holt has been working in France, and there has succeeded in doing commanding work in the rehabilitation of men blinded in battle. Engaged in the work with her are such Americans as Woodrow Wilson, William Howard Taft, Charles E. Hughes, John H. Finley, Herbert L. Satterlee, William Forbes Morgan and other Americans of high standing.

President Cleveland was one of the first of the great Americans to take a keen interest in the welfare of the blind. At one time he was a teacher of the sightless. Theodore Roosevelt had a working interest in the cause.

In speaking of the campaign for the sightless Miss Holt said: "In the recent war thousands of men were blinded in battle, but these sightless veterans represent only a small percentage of the blind persons in the world who need help today. Because of the dramatic way in which the war blind lost their sight, they represent a real asset to the civilian blind, for they have helped to focus public attention upon the world-wide problem of the sightless."

Work of the Paris "Light House."

Perhaps the most interesting of the "light houses" for the blind is one in which Miss Holt labored in Paris. There are pathetic and dramatic stories told of the work in that light house where strong men suddenly stricken with blindness were brought out of the despair of their condition to become reconciled to their lot in life, and to determine not only to make themselves self-supporting and useful citizens of the republic, but to help insomuch as in them lay to espouse the cause of the civilian blind and to aid also in the work of prevention of blindness.

Soldiers of the great war who were blinded in battle suffered a mental reaction, the blackness of which probably no one but themselves can realize. Soldiers, with their sight shot out, were in a mood to believe that God and the world had deserted them, and apparently they did so believe. Not the least difficult of the tasks which confronted the workers among the blind was that of bringing the dependent ones out of mental gloom.

In one state of the Union in one year recently 80 persons were arrested, charged with causing, either maliciously or through neglect, blindness in others. It is said that a large percentage of the blindness which exists among civilians in the countries of the world could have been prevented if proper protective methods had been taken either at birth or later, when the condition of sightlessness was threatened.

HOME TOWN HELPS

MAKE THE HOME ATTRACTIVE

Results Will Follow a Little Careful Planning and a Small Expenditure of Money.

Right now is a good time to plan how the homestead—perhaps new, perhaps old—can be made more attractive. A few years will pass surprisingly quickly, and the old home will become increasingly unattractive or beautiful, depending on whether the owner and his wife have done a little planning and a little planting, season by season.

The United States Department of Agriculture suggests in the pictures shown here with some of the ways of beautifying. The changes produced by planting shrubs can be effected in one or two seasons, and even where trees are shown, often only five or six years are required to produce the effects pictured if quick-growing varieties are planted. In such a case, however, provision should be made for better, slow-growing varieties which will be allowed to come up and eventually take the place of the quick growers.

With cultivated land carried to the very door, the house shown in the first picture has no homelike setting. It appears merely as an intrusion in the landscape. But when it is given a dooryard, with lawns, trees, and shrubs, as shown in the second illustration, it takes its proper place in the picture, without detracing from the value of the surrounding land.

If you want more information on this subject write the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, for Farmers' Bulletin 1087, "Beautifying the Farmstead." It will be sent free on request.

Faulty Chimneys Cause Fire.

A summary of the various causes of fire shows that those attributable to chimneys annually amount to from 10 to 26 per cent of the total number, while in winter the percentage has reached as high as 50. This is significant when it is realized that most of these fires result from carelessness and could be avoided by proper attention.

In cities and towns with proper fire protection many fires are arrested without serious loss. It is evident that in rural districts where there are no organized fire-fighting agencies, and where a fire usually results in a total loss, builders should give more attention to making the construction of all new chimneys as nearly fireproof as possible.

Future Belongs to Small City.

It would be rash to conclude from the census figures that the problem of a better distribution of population is unsolvable. The fact that the small cities show the greatest gains is significant. These obviously permit freer living conditions than the large cities and at the same time are free from the isolation of the village or the widely scattered homesteads. The small city in these days prides itself upon its "metropolitan" aspect. It is conspicuously up-to-date and provides comfortable living. The tendency of industrial enterprises to seek locations at a distance from the centers of population has had much to do with the upbuilding of cities of this type.

Community's Real Worth.

After all is said and done, the number of persons residing in a community has little to do with its real greatness. It's the kind of people it has, the kind it turns out and the kind of things it does which bring everlasting fame in the end.

Because a place is not as big in population as its people had hoped for should cause no great regret; but if it is not forging ahead in numbers because of the care it takes of its residents, then there is reason for shame. —Exchange.

"THE GREEN FLAME"

J. Warren Kerrigan's Thrilling Mystery, Star in Detective Role at the New Lyceum

"The Green Flame" is a wonderful title suggesting mystery and is the very keynote of J. Warren Kerrigan's latest Brunton picture. Placing the audience on 'quivive,' tantalizing them with suspense and baffling them with the mysterious workings of a decidedly original type of crook ring is said to have been the purpose of Raymond G. Hill, the distinguished playwright and author of "Hara O'Neil," who wrote "The Green Flame," which comes to the Lyceum Theatre tonight only.

"Jimmy Valentine"

Coming to motion pictures fresh from a girl's finishing school near Philadelphia, Mary Beaton, who appears in "Alias Jimmy Valentine," in which Bert Lytell is starring at the Lyceum theatre tomorrow, has already set managers talking about her possibilities as a future star.

Miss Beaton, who is a young woman of singular beauty of face and figure had long been desirous of launching upon a career in the silent drama. She is well known in the younger social set in and about Philadelphia and her progress on the screen will be watched with the greatest interest by her numerous friends.

WILL KEEP HISTORIC NAME

Appellation of Sub-Treasury Building at New York Is Not to Be Changed.

Although the United States subtreasury in New York city has ceased to exist, in deference to the traditions of events and memories of historical figures that have hallowed both the building and site, it will continue to be known as the Subtreasury building. With Independence hall at Philadelphia, and Faneuil hall at Boston, the buildnig is one of this country's best known historic shrines.

Ever since George Washington took oath of office as president at this spot, which was then the seat of the federal congress, it has been the scene of some of the most stirring and important events in the annals of the city and country.

Here the men whose names illumine the pages of American history have spoken, as well as those who later became the rulers of Europe or the leaders of armies during the World war. Historical societies, on important anniversaries, have claimed it as their own and have re-enacted the scenes of history there. George Washington has been inaugurated as President again and again, with all the pomp and color of colonial days.

Delectable Siberian Dish.

The Siberians make much of their "cold table"—raw fish, caviar, salads, and that delicious crab whose meat gives no nightmare, indigestion or headache.

Their best dish is chicken, prepared in a most unusual way. Butter is laid thickly on a bone; layers of light and dark meat are wrapped around it; then the whole is rolled in egg and crumbs and baked. It makes a small "ham" of chicken and is very tender. One must be careful in cutting into it lest the hot butter spurt out beyond the plate.

The Russian is a heavy meat eater, due largely to the fact that there is an abundance of game, pheasants being cheaper than chickens, and in some places venison is cheaper than steak. In the palmy days the Siberian table must have groaned.—Cody Marsh in the National Geographic Magazine.

Between Crosby and Mississippi Practically All Hills and Steep Grades Will be Eliminated

A surveying crew of six men working under the direction of C. L. Mott, county engineer, is locating the route of proposed State Road No. 8 from Crosby north to Adcocks farm where it will connect up with that part of State Road No. 8 now under 10 miles long and the part between construction.

The section to be surveyed is about Crosby and the Mississippi river is expected to be so located that practically all the high hills, steep grades and sharp curves will be eliminated.

If all expectations are fulfilled, the roadway when completed will not only be economical and safe to travel upon, but the scenic features should also make it enjoyable to those who ride for recreation.

METER TALK

"Good morning; have you had your meter put in?"

o o o o

"I had my meter tested and I learned something new. I learned that the meter was O. K. and that I was wrong. It was a big disappointment to me."

o o o o

"Our old meter read less than the new one. The new meter must be wrong."

o o o o

"I got scared stiff when my meter read 1090 this morning, but later I found out that I had read it ten times too big. Some relief, believe me."

o o o o

"I had the plumber up to the house this morning and he fixed a few leaks. I never realized water could run so fast."

o o o o

"I always knew our toilet leaked, but I did not think that made a difference." (Editor: Lucky for you boy that the city was not pumping gas instead of water).

o o o o

"How is your check-valve today? "I did not buy one. My neighbor, Dr. So and So, says I don't need one. Do you suppose he knows?"

o o o o

"We never heard as much talk about gas meters or electric meters as we do about water meters. What's the matter anyway?"

o o o o

"The thing I could never understand is how water passing through a meter could make the meter run faster than the water itself runs." (Editor: The meter does not run faster, but we are afraid it does).

o o o o

"Meters are fine things. My bill is less than I ever paid before."

"Meters are rotten; they are never right. My bill was higher than ever before."

o o o o

"Let me tell you something, but this is on the Q. T. They put in meters all around our house but they skipped us."

DAUGHTERS AMERICAN REVOLUTION ORGANIZE

A letter has been received from Mrs. M. H. Coolidge, State Regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, saying that she is anxious to start a chapter of this organization in Brainerd. The Daughters of the American Revolution have done a great genealogical and historical work for the libraries of the country and for the Smithsonian Institute. They were the first to start the work of Americanization.

All women of Brainerd who are eligible for membership are invited to attend a meeting called at home of Mrs. C. A. Allbright, 507 Kingwood St., next Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock when the subject of organizing a chapter will be discussed.

MAYOR F. E. LITTLE MAKES A RECORD

Filed Up a Score of 576 Pins in Three Games, an Average of 192 at Cook's Alleys

MOOSE TEAM PUSHES AHEAD

Fraternal League Standing Shows the Knights of Columbus and Eagles Tied for First Place

At the Cook's bowling alleys Hon. F. E. Little distinguished himself by piling up a score of 576 pins in three games, an average of 192.

The Moose team had been holding the cellar position in the league for several weeks and the K. C. had been holding first position, so when these two teams got together last Monday the mayor got on his dignity and piled up a score that very materially helped the Moose win three straight from their opponents.

The A. O. U. W. with their big handicap were too much for the Elks who lost all three games to their opponents.

The K. P's. and Eagles were very sociable and played a very close contest. The K. P's. won the first game by the small margin of 9 pins. The Eagles won the last two but only had 8 pins to the good in the third game.

This makes the team standings in the league as follows: K. C. and Eagles tied for first place, Elks second place, Workmen third, K. P. fourth and Moose fifth.

Circulating the Scriptures.

The 1919 issues of the American Bible society were 3,752,309 volumes. The sun never sets on the representatives of this society, which asserts that some one is busy every hour of the day and every day of the year circulating the Scriptures. This total means that seven volumes were issued every minute of every hour of every day of the year.

The issues of 1919 were the smallest since 1911; chiefly because of after war conditions. The average of annual issues for the last ten years has been over 5,000,000 volumes. For the period of the war, 1914-1919, it was over 5,870,000, which means that on an average 11 volumes of Scriptures were issued every minute of the years of the war by the American Bible society.

20TH ANNUAL BALL SET FOR FEB. 4TH

Given by No. 116 Boilermakers, Ship Builders & Helpers Union of America at Gardner Hall

BLUE RIBBON ORCHESTRA PLAYS

Arrangements Committee Headed by Chairman Wm. Irwin and Five Associates

The 20th annual ball given by the Boilermakers, Iron Ship Builders and Helpers of America, Union No. 116, will be held in Gardner hall on Friday evening, February 4. The music will be furnished by the Blue Ribbon orchestra.

The committee in charge of this annual event is as follows: Chairman Wm. Irwin, assisted by L. A. Rifenrath, Jas. McElroy, E. Carron, Wm. Susser and E. Bikkie.

It is expected that this social gathering will bring together a large number of people. All preparations have been looked after with an eye for detail and thoroughness and from the amount of tickets being taken, it gives every indication of being very well attended.

BRAINERD'S OLDEST STORIES

Here are two hard luck stories. Ole Benson, taxi man, drove a man to Little Falls and was paid with a bum check. He found out later that the man who had victimized him had also played the game on several Brainerd merchants.

Wm. F. Marx, on the streets on a very windy night, had his hat blown off. The headgear bounced along the pavement and then hopped on the running board of a passing automobile. Marx gave chase, but the car occupants never heard him. He returned home hatless in a biting northeaster wind storm.

WOODHEAD MOTOR CO. IN NEW QUARTERS

To Remove January 24th to New Location at 412-414-416-418 So. Seventh Street

HAS 15,000 FEET FLOOR SPACE

The New Show Room Is to Have Plate Glass Front Extending Eighty Feet

Early next week the Woodhead Motor Company moves to new premises at 412, 414, 416, 418, South Seventh street. This removal into larger quarters has been made necessary by the expansion during five years.

In this new location the building will have 15,000 square feet of floor space and is all under one roof. Every machine known to the Ford engineers by which service rendered may be made a little better has been installed in the new service station.

The Woodhead Motor Company was the first automobile distributing agency in Brainerd which insisted upon its mechanics taking a full mechanical course in the factory of the company making the car sold. Those in charge of the Ford service station went to the Ford factory in Detroit, Michigan and took a thorough course in the mechanical construction of the Ford car.

The service rendered by the Woodhead Motor Co. is limited to the Ford car, and it is obvious that this increases the efficiency of the workmen and gives the car users the benefit of better service at lower costs.

All parts entering into the construction of the Ford car are kept in quantity and those having car trouble can be assured at all times that their needs will be met at the service station. The company carries in stock the Fordson tractor and all the tractor drawn implements. The new show room which is to be erected as soon as possible will be a handsome addition to Brainerd. The front which is wholly of plate glass will extend 80 feet.

The design of the building suggests an old English tavern rather than a garage. The furnishing throughout will be dark oak mission style.

His Appetite With Him.

A story is told of a jockey who after the race for which he had been long starving himself went to a hotel and ate a leg of mutton. When the waiter asked if he would like some sweets or cheese, he replied: "No. I never eat sweets. But if you have another leg of mutton I think I could manage it."

LEADER STORE TO LARGER QUARTERS

A. I. Haskell Has Made a Record in Merchandising, Building up a Fine Business

REMOVAL SALE IS IN PROGRESS

New Location on Front and Seventh Streets in Anna Block to be Occupied Feb. 1

The Leader Store is to move into larger quarters at an early date. This store under the management of A. I. Haskell has been doing business in Brainerd for about fourteen months. During those months a fine business has been built up which makes it advisable to move into more favorable and larger quarters.

Owing to the moving of the Woodhead Motor Co. to their new quarters, Mr. Haskell has been able to secure the premises occupied by this company and will transfer his stock to his new location on the first of February.

The new location on Front and Seventh streets is a very favorable one and is next door to the building now occupied by the Leader store.

Gradual expansion of business enterprises speaks well for Brainerd and for those who by industry and attention to business increase their sales.

Individuality.

Individuals are just as distinct and different each from the other as one kind of matter differs from another. They have different uses and different applications.

To attempt to drive a nail with a sponge would be just as fruitless, if not as destructive, as to try to wash a window with a hammer.

To try to make a boy who loves mechanics and wants to study machinery into a professor of Greek is to misapply his talents and diminish his efficiency.

Don't plan too much for your children.

Let them have a little of their own way in following their inclinations as to what they shall be and do.

Remember that you cannot get out of a boy or a man what God Almighty did not put into him.—F. A. Walker in Chicago Daily News.

Inventor Ill Rewarded.

When Joseph Jacquard in 1801 invented the Jacquard loom for pattern weaving, making it possible for a common weaver to do the work hitherto done only by the most expert, there was great objection from the weavers, and on one occasion he was assaulted and narrowly escaped with his life. His only compensation for his valuable invention was a small pension.

KAMCHATKA: ALASKA'S POOR RELATION.

The Kamchatkan peninsula and the Siberian country between it and the Arctic ocean have attracted international attention since the report of its lease to a syndicate of Americans for the development of its natural resources. This region is a sort of half-sister to Alaska, which was also once Russian territory.

Alaska, the more comely sister, fared forth, so to speak, was sold into the family of the wealthy Uncle Sam, and has had a life rich in excitement and adventure. Kamchatka, the more homely sister, remained under the Russian rooftree on the west side of Bering sea, and has lived in seclusion.

Kamchatka and the country north to Bering strait contain a large area of tundra or Arctic plains; soft, spongy morasses during the few months of summer; frozen, snow-covered wastes in winter. In the higher land impenetrable underbrush springs up in summer. What little travel is possible at this season is done on the backs of sturdy ponies who must wade up the shallow streams or plod through the sticky swamps. In winter travel is easy. Teams of dogs and reindeer whisk laden sledges over the frozen surface of the streams and across the snow of the tundra at a rate, under favorable circumstances, of 75 miles or more a day. Trails that are virtually highways are beaten down by the teams of the natives bringing their furs—the chief present resources of the country—to the trading posts.

In the summer the curse of the moist regions of the north strikes the Kamchatkan country; swarms of mosquitoes and flies thicken the air and make life miserable for all living things. The nomadic natives flee with their herds of reindeer to the seacoast, where the breezes give some relief.

Though the climate of Kamchatka is rigorous, a Westerner is likely to consider the food of the country more so. Bowls of boiled fishes' eyes are the most popular delicacy in the lower peninsula where the silver hordes of salmon run up most of the streams. To the north reindeer meat in some form is the universal piece de resistance, the tongues and marrow bones being prized in particular.

"Cold storage" eggs contribute to Kamchatka's tables. The eggs are obtained from the nests of gulls and other wild fowls and are buried in pits on the frosty north side of a hill until needed. Frozen berries also eke out the winter fare.

"Soup balls," carried by winter travelers, are likely to prove a compensation to western palates. They are small balls of reindeer "sausage" surrounded by a crust of dough, the whole about the size of an English walnut. These balls freeze and are carried in bags like marbles. A handful dropped into a kettle of boiling water produces within a few minutes a delectable and sustaining dish.

The Kamchatkan peninsula proper is about 750 miles in length, and the distance from its roots to Bering strait is an equal distance. Kamchatka lies in the same latitude as the British isles, while the country north to the Arctic ocean is in the latitude of Norway. The Kamchatka region is bathed by cold arctic currents instead of the warm Gulf stream, and its climate is therefore much colder than that of Britain and Scandinavia.

KOBE, OSAKA AND YOKOHAMA.

Eastern questions will hereafter become for many members of congress more realistic and understandable and therefore sympathetically treated, since their visit to the commercial cities of Japan during their trip through the Orient.

Kobe, Osaka and Yokohama proudly displayed for American observation their busy factories with their interesting products, and bustling docks where junks plying inland waters and foreign-bound steamers are gorging and disgorging freight.

The busy city of Kobe may be entered after a charming trip through the Inland sea, that picturesque landlocked basin with four channels to the outer sea, a fairyland of islands covered with temples and trees which is famous in Japanese song and story. One writer has called it the Gem of the World. Certainly it is one of the most beautiful sea routes in the world.

Kobe, with its 2,741 acres of excellent harbor, which in modern, up-to-date fashion has been divided systematically into sections for junks, merchant vessels and for dreadnaughts of the Japanese navy, is the most attractive of the treaty ports, and has within the last few years shot ahead of Yokohama in the volume of its commerce, its total trade being about 40 per cent of the whole trade of the country. It ships copper, rice, straw hemp, chip braids for hats, mattings, camphor, tea and cotton yarn, and yearly enough passengers land on its docks to make a city the size of Seattle, Kansas City or Providence.

This port, which is now so attractively situated on the hill slopes running down to the sea, was merely a group of fishing huts about fifty years ago when it was first opened to foreign commerce.

Osaka, which has been styled because of its numerous canals and bridges, the Venice of the East, is one of the three imperial cities, and has a population of a million. Here is located the Japanese mint, covering 40 acres, a shipyard having a 1,000-foot frontage, and important factories which make cotton cloth, glass, iron and steel products, boots and shoes, matches and tobacco products. Most of the trade of Osaka, however, since the harbor is unsuited for large vessels, is with the interior.

Japan's other important port, Yokohama, was where Commodore Perry first entered the country in 1854. As the ship steams out from the city and the picturesque little towns about the harbor fade into the haze, the majestic form of Fujiyama, the sacred mountain still towers in the distance. For those who have climbed its rugged height in the dark before dawn to see the sun rise in splendor over its rim and have peered into the crater of the old volcano, the picture is one they will be glad to bring home with them in their hearts.

GUATEMALA: LAND OF UPHEAVALS AND PROGRESS.

A condition of upheaval, not necessarily from political causes, is nothing new to the republic of Guatemala. This country has wonderfully rich and fertile soil and its climate rarely is equaled.

The city of Guatemala, which is now partially rebuilt, was the scene of one of the most violent earthquakes known in Central American history. This earthquake extended over several months during the latter part of 1917 and the early months of 1918. It began November 17, 1917. On Christmas night in the parks of the city, beneath a full moon in an untroubled sky, the populace huddled watching in fear and misery their homes, the trees, and the earth as well, creep, writhe and twist.

On the night of January 24, the moon again beamed from a cloudless sky upon these people as they saw nearly every remaining edifice in their city tumble in whirlwinds of dust. The tremors seemed to center under the very city itself, and spectators have said that they feared that the earth would give away and a volcano form in the very heart of the city. Houses and bell towers crumbled, water mains were broken, the sewage oozed up in the streets and, in the cemeteries, skeletons were shaken out of their coffins.

One can take a steamer from New Orleans and in three days reach Puerto Barrios, on the Gulf of Amatique, along the sunny eastern shores of the country, where stately palms wave in greeting.

Along this seacoast and farther inland large banana plantations cover thousands of acres. This one comparatively small country raises for its own and the outside world's consumption about ten million bunches of bananas a year. The valley of the Motagua river is considered one of the most densely vegetated regions of the world.

But the most important crop of the state is coffee. In 1918 Guatemala produced about one hundred and ten million pounds of coffee, more than seventy million pounds of which were exported to the United States.

In the mountains of southwestern Guatemala live pure-blooded Indians who have won admiration of travelers for their physique, cleanliness and scrupulous honesty. One visitor tells of trying to buy a ring from an Indian girl, who refused to sell because the jewel was not pure gold, and she did not wish to sell a stranger an imitation!

These Indians wear beautiful shawls with no fringes, dyed in brilliant colors. When brought to this country specimens have withstood repeated washing and the colors have retained their marvelous luster.

ZARA: FAMOUS FOR ITS MARASCHINO AND ITS CHURCHES.

Zara, where Gabriele d'Annunzio landed troops to strengthen his position at Fiume, is ceded to Italy under the terms of the Rapallo agreement between Italy and Jugo-Slavia. This city, noted for its churches and its maraschino, is described in a communication to the National Geographic society by Kenneth McKenzie as follows:

"Starting from Fiume, one sails down the channel called Quarnerolo, leaving Istria and the Gulf of Quarnero to the right. The Island of Arbe, about half way to Zara, has an old cathedral with a Twelfth-century tower. Coming from Trieste, one skirts the western shore of Istria, stopping perhaps at Rovigno and at Pola. The stay of an hour enables one to get a hurried glimpse of the great amphitheater and other Roman remains of Pola, under Austrian rule, an important naval station and strongly fortified. The language here is chiefly Italian. Istria would well repay the time devoted to a trip of several days; but we pass on, stopping at one or two of the islands, to Zara, the most northerly town of importance in Dalmatia.

"Zara is noted all over the world for its maraschino. Aside from this, however, the town has many attractions to offer. On landing from the steamer in the land-locked harbor, we find ourselves in front of a gate in the town wall. Over the gate is the winged lion of St. Mark, often met with here and elsewhere in Dalmatia, and a symbol of the former dominion of the republic of Venice. Passing through the gate, we enter the narrow paved streets of a typical Italian city, such as we may imagine it to have been two or three centuries ago, except that the hotels are more comfortable. There are many medieval churches in the town, interesting architecturally, and containing works of art. The cathedral in particular, a majestic Romanesque church, is richly adorned outside with many arcades of little columns and inside with marbles and paintings. It is in the best Italian style of the Middle Ages. Its campanile is a landmark.

"Wandering among the narrow streets, we come upon several open squares and market places, where in the morning scores of peasants may be seen in their brilliant-colored costumes. There are Roman remains, too—columns and statues.

"Leaving Zara, the steamer comes out of the harbor, encircles the point of land on which the city stands, and skirts low-lying shores, passing among innumerable islands. All at once a narrow opening appears; we go through it, and find ourselves in the spacious harbor of Sebenico, with the town rising from the water to a fort crowning the hill."

A ONE-MAN FLAG—THE PRESIDENT'S.

Most folk know of some of the perquisites that will accrue to the next President of the United States, such as a band which is at his disposal—the Marine band—and the White House conservatories which provide the first lady of the land with flowers, but it is not so generally known that one of the honors bestowed upon the chief executive is a special flag.

This flag is not seen frequently. It does not float over the White House. Its use is reserved, for the most part, for occasions when the President appears in his ex-officio capacity as commander in chief of the army and the navy.

The President's flag consists of the coat-of-arms as they appear on the President's seal, against a blue background, and flanked by four stars. Its history and use are described in the monograph on "Flags of the World" of the National Geographic society as follows:

When the President visits a vessel of the United States, the President's flag is broken at the main the moment he reaches the deck, and is kept flying as long as he is on board. If the vessel can do so, a national salute of 21 guns is fired as soon as possible after his arrival on board. Upon departure, another salute of 21 guns is fired, the President's flag being lowered with the last gun of the salute.

When the President is embarked in a boat he usually directs that his flag be displayed from the staff in the bow of his barge. When he passes in a boat flying his flag, vessels of the navy parade the full guard, four ruffles are given on the drum, four flourishes are sounded on the bugle, the National Anthem is played by the band, and officers and men salute. When the President is embarked in a ship flying his flag, all saluting ships, on meeting her at sea or elsewhere, and all naval batteries, fire a national salute on passing.

Previous to the present order there were two designs displayed on flags and on colors to be used in the presence of the commander in chief of the army and the navy. The navy design was of an earlier date than that of the army, and consisted of the coat-of-arms of the United States, as shown in the Great Seal, upon a blue ground. This happened to be almost identical with the infantry colors. The President's colors were designed to be distinctive from the infantry colors, and consisted of a blue ground with a large crimson star, outlined heavily with white. Within the star was to be seen the coat-of-arms of the United States, and outside the star within its angles were powdered small stars to the number of states in the Union.

Can Can.

All the world before long will be canning American style, if the present rate of progress keeps up. Last year France asked the loan of some canning specialists from the United States Department of Agriculture to teach them the purely American art of home canning. The results were so gratifying that the same group were asked to return this year to give further instruction. They went, and their work everywhere in France was attended with gratifying results.

The director general of agriculture in the little duchy of Luxemburg hearing of the method of preserving fruits and vegetables being taught the French, asked if the American canning experts could be lent to Luxemburg when they were through in France. This was arranged, and the first two weeks in September found the Americans teaching in Luxemburg how to can and dry garden products and how to can meat and fish. From Luxemburg the demonstrators went to Holland where at Amsterdam and other places a series of lectures were given. At the request of the British Department of Agriculture, the canning specialists then went to England and gave demonstrations before the English institute workers. One group is now in Denmark and another in Egypt. Wherever American canning methods are taught the response and appreciation is most gratifying.

MUST PAY TRIBUTE TO ART

Not in Admiration, But in Current Coin, Is the Edict of the French Authorities.

After all these years of luxurious idleness the Venus de Milo must become a wage earner. The authorities of France have so decreed. And not only Venus, but Mona Lisa and all the other celebrities gathered in the Louvre, and in the Luxembourg and other galleries as well. For the fiat has gone forth recently that hereafter those who have been accustomed to visit the museums of Paris day after day, finding their treasures free as air, must pay an admission fee. If you want to go to admire Venus in her crimson velvet seclusion you must pay for the privilege. To be sure, she is worth any price, you must admit. And when you go into the Salon Carre of the Louvre and stop to meditate about what the enigmatical Mona Lisa is meditating, you must pay for that, too. Not a separate admission for each department. No, they are all banded together in one big union, as it were, all those priceless treasures of each museum, and hereafter they will earn their keep.

Rafts May Cross Pacific.

Swedish lumbermen are on this coast investigating the possibility of rafting lumber from British Columbia to Europe. Lumber rafts of large size, called rafanutes, have been successfully towed from Sweden to Great Britain, says the Scientific American. The Ocean Rafanute Syndicate of London, England, has sent William Olsson of Stockholm, an experienced rafanute builder, here to investigate the possibility of adapting that method to British Columbia timber exports.

The rafanutes are made of square timbers. Mr. Olsson, though expressing nothing definite, believes that the tremendous timbers of the British Columbia forests will make possible the construction and successful operation of rafanutes far larger than the rafts now shipped out of the Baltic. Swedish structures carry 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 feet each. It is proposed that the British Columbia rafts will contain 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 feet.

Rothschild's Best Tip.

In 1871 a friend approached Baron Rothschild, the great financier, who was a firm believer in the maxim "Buy when everybody else is selling and sell when others are buying," and asked what the banker considered a first-class investment.

"Buy French rentes," said Rothschild; "you can get them cheaply now." French bonds were then selling at 83.

"But the streets of Paris are running with blood," objected his friend.

"That's the reason you can buy them cheaply," replied the money baron.

A quarter of a century later in 1896 these bonds were selling at 105 and were considered as perhaps the most conservative investment in the world. —Wall Street Journal.

Birds and Superstition.

Numerous birds are mixed up with signs of death. Let a pigeon enter a house, or a robin come through the door, and some people expect calamity. Owls, again, are ominous birds to the superstitious.

Flier's Good Work.

For revealing details hidden from horizontal observation, the value of the "bird's-eye" view was demonstrated anew in Iowa not long ago. The attention of a flier, circling about near Des Moines, was caught by various ribbons of smoke arising from apparently deserted regions, and closer inspection revealed a number of autos hidden in the brush, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. When the airman returned with a companion and made a landing, a large copper still was discovered, attended by four men and fed with corn from a wagon.

The Matrimonial Kind.

"The men's wear department is two aisles to the left, sir," said the officious floorwalker. "We are having a special sale of collars today."

"I don't want any collars," said the meek-looking man who was waiting for his wife. "I've been wearing a pretty stiff one for twenty years."

"The same collar, sir?"

"The same. A preacher put it on me."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Advertisers in the Daily Dispatch

Now get the same cut service as the big city dailies.

We have made arrangements with the Murray Illustrated Advertising Company of New York, for the furnishing of cuts for advertising purposes absolutely free to our patrons. This service is the best in America and has as clients some of the largest newspapers published.

Never before has it been possible for a paper to furnish this service without a considerable added outlay on the part of the advertiser, and even now it is only offered to the paper recognized by advertisers and readers as the leader in its section.

The Dispatch buys the cuts; the advertiser pays for the space in the paper at the same rate as for other advertising. Many of our patrons have already taken advantage of this offer and others are invited to do so.

We will be glad to explain the matter more fully
